

My Life, My Choice

Haya, Vida, Vios, Jivatam, whatever you call it, life is considered to be a great gift by many, but it's not a gift that you chose, God just randomly thought " Which poor soul am I going to chuck down today?" & for no reason at all, he chose you & poof, you came into existence.

Life & choice are threaded together, make no mistake about that. What's the proof you say, well I chose to come here today, missing Saturday school, which is why my life will come to an unceremonious end on Monday when I will be executed, my head stuck on a pike with words " He didn't learn his trigonometry" seared into my forehead. You see, threaded together.

My life will always be defined by my choices, as it should be. I choose to breathe at this moment, I chose to lock my cousin inside my car boot because he wouldn't shut up about the fact that he got to hold the IPL trophy. But this is a two-way street, i.e. Sometimes you make choices in life and sometimes, choices make you. Which is probably why on April 2015, it gave me the ability to meet the Missile Man of India, Dr. A.P.J Abdul Kalam.

My choices have never been consistent, they've been hard, easy, simple, complex, outright obvious & definitely mind-boggling. Another thing that's changed is how I address them. 10 yrs. ago if you gave me the choice between getting a mountain-load of Kit-Kats and ruling the world for a month, I would've chosen the Kit-Kats for sure. Today if you gave me the same choice, it's obvious which one I would choose, it's the Kit-Kats. I'd be mad to not do so. I'm kidding, it would be the world domination one.

All in all, the power that choices now exert over me is on the rise & apparently on April 2019, I'll be faced with a choice that I've had to hear about since last year, from those clothed in rags to people wandering around in three piece suits, so much so my ears have begun to bleed. Hopefully, there is a large pot of gold at the end of this monochrome rainbow.

But who knows? There are really only 3 choices in life, give up, give in or give it all you've got.

Thank You
